

NEED STRICTER LAWS TO PRESERVE PEACE

PRESIDENT TAFT HAS CONFERENCE TODAY IN REGARD TO MEXICAN DIFFICULTY.

SITUATION IS STRAINED

Pressing Need For Neutrality Laws Covering Matter Is Made Plain—Prohibit Iron Shipments.

Washington, March 13.—President Taft pointed out to members of the foreign relations committee and the Texas congressional delegation at a conference at the White House that the neutrality laws of the United States were not specific enough and he reported to have said that unless Congress enacted new measures it would be difficult to preserve peace with Mexico.

Attorney General Wickham, Secretary of War Shinn, Senators Cullum, Sutherland, Root, Bacon, Hitchcock and William Alden Smith of the foreign relations committee as well as Senator Cullum, heading the Texas delegation in congress took part in the conference.

Better Neutrality Laws.
The President appealed to them to help him preserve peace by preventing violations of the present neutrality law along the Mexican and suggested that some steps be taken at once for the enactment of more adequate laws.

The conference was a direct result of the appeal of President Madero of Mexico, to President Taft that United States put into effect a stricter neutrality law.

The ambassador has suggested to the President that the present laws were framed in the early part of the last century when problems such as have recently arisen were not even dreamed of. Mexico in effect asked the United States to prevent shipments into the southern republic notwithstanding their consignments as articles of commerce into points like Juarez held by the rebels.

Duty of Neutral.
Such a request is in conflict with the previous attitude of the United States outlined during the Mexican revolution and recently reiterated, namely that this country could not interfere with the channels of commerce from one part of entry into another, Mexico contends, however, that when arms obviously are intended for revolutionists and are going to be used against the federal government, the duty of the United States is neutral should be more specifically outlined. Congress is now asked by President Taft to find a solution for the dilemma.

Prohibit Iron Shipments.
Washington, March 13.—After conference the senate committee on foreign relations held a meeting and framed a joint resolution which would prohibit the shipment of iron from the United States into any state of the American continent which is in a condition of disorder.

The resolution would impose heavy penalties. The intention being to make it immediately applicable to the Mexican situation. The resolution was adopted unanimously in committee and was reported to the senate immediately.

Miller to consolidate the trial, but today he said he merely concluded to reverse his opinion and order individual trials. He called for discussion from attorneys for the defense and the government.

Cary, and Dr. Gerhard A. Ludwig, as non-partisan candidates in the democratic column of the primary ballot to be voted next Tuesday. Chief Justice Winslow announced he would take the matter under advisement, and this afternoon the court denied the application for the writ.

The Arabs heavily defended their positions but were routed by the Italian troops at the point of the bayonet. Over four hundred Arab corpses were left on the battlefield and Italian officers report that an enormous number were carried off by their retreating army.

REPUBLICANS WILL GO ON RECORD NOW

In Caucus Assembled Take Decided Action on the Sugar Schedule.

Washington, March 13.—Republicans of the House in caucus today declared that the free sugar bill proposed by the democrats of the House was a political plot for votes and that the extension of the corporation tax to individuals and co-partnerships to make up the revenue that will be lost from sugar, was its companion-piece. The caucus was assembled at the instance of Republican Leader Mann, who told his colleagues he wanted their views on the sugar bill. The meeting was attended by regulars and progressives. The general opinion expressed was that a united stand should be taken against the free sugar bill and that on a motion to recommend the bill it should be stipulated, but the ways and means committee ought to make a report to the tariff board on the sugar schedule.

AFFAIRS POLITICAL THROUGHOUT COUNTRY

Colonel Roosevelt to Open Campaign Wednesday of Next Week in New York.

Oyster Bay, March 13.—The first speech of Col. Roosevelt's campaign is to be made next in New York. He announced today that on next Wednesday he would speak in Carnegie hall under the auspices of the Civic Forum. He has chosen as his subject the "Right of the People to Rule."

Favor Roosevelt in Oklahoma. Guthrie, Okla., March 13.—Unless the unexpected happens, Theodore Roosevelt will get in his first body blow in the fight for the Republican presidential nomination here tomorrow, when the Republicans of Oklahoma will meet to name ten delegates and ten alternates to the national convention at Chicago.

The Roosevelt supporters are expected to be in absolute control of the convention, notwithstanding the fact that the State organization has fought tooth and nail in the interest of President Taft. The delegates to the state convention instructed for Roosevelt outnumber the Taft delegates nearly two to one. The Roosevelt supporters point to this fact as one of great significance because, they declare, it represents the first chance the people have had to choose between the two candidates under a primary law. While ready to admit that they have lost the fight so far as the state convention is concerned, the Taft people believe they will be able to capture some of the district delegates, thus preventing a solid Roosevelt delegation from Oklahoma.

Michigan G. O. P. Divided. Detroit, Mich., March 13.—The Taft campaign in Michigan will be started down the ways at Lansing next Friday night, when a big Republican banquet will be given with Senator William Alden Smith as the chief speaker. The affair will mark the beginning of a hard fight that will be made to keep the Wolverine State in line for the President's re-nomination. A division of sentiment that is almost without precedent is admitted to exist among the Republicans of Michigan at the present time. Both the United States senators and all the Republican representatives from the state are placed among the Taft supporters, but the President is being fought by Governor Osborne and his followers.

The Governor has been bounding hard for Roosevelt, but the Taft people claim they do not fear the result, and that now that they are getting down to the real work of the campaign things will begin to move their way.

Nagel Stumping New England. Boston, Mass., March 13.—Presumably to offset the effect of the recent visit of Colonel Roosevelt to Boston, Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel came to New England today to deliver several addresses for President Taft. Mr. Nagel is booked to speak in Springfield tonight and in Providence tomorrow night. Early next week this section is to receive a visit from President Taft himself. The President will be in Boston Monday and will spend the next two days in New Hampshire, where Governor Boss is stirring things up in the interest of the Roosevelt candidacy.

Seattle, Wash., March 13.—The Roosevelt League has completed arrangements for the state convention to be held here tomorrow, at which time plans will be discussed for an aggressive campaign in Washington in the interest of the Roosevelt candidacy. PORTUGUESE TROOPS DESERT TO JOIN THE ROYALISTS

Lisbon, Portugal, March 13.—A sensation was caused today by the announcement that a large part of the 10th regiment of Portuguese infantry at Braganza on the northern frontier had crossed the border with their arms and joined the royalists. Other regiments stationed in the north have been removed, the government fearing that the royalist propaganda has weakened their loyalty.

Kansas Living Up for Clark.

Hutchinson, Kan., March 13.—Nearly all of the 617 delegates who will comprise the Democratic state convention to be held here tomorrow have arrived in the city. The Democrats regard the outlook for the success of their party in Kansas this year as unusually bright and the convention promises to be an outstanding and important gathering. The work of the convention will be confined to the election of delegates-at-large to the Baltimore convention and the selection of a national committee.

The predominance of the Clark sentiment is so marked that it is not believed the Wilson adherents will attempt seriously to prevent the endorsement of the Missouri. The indications are that the name of no other aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination will be mentioned.

Anarchy Prevails. Hong Kong, March 13.—A condition of anarchy appeared to prevail almost everywhere in the Chinese province of Tan-Su, at Swang, where the soldiers of the garrison opposed the landing of the two thousand Hakkas or marauding tribesmen and several fierce encounters have taken place between them.

A battle was fought on Saturday at Shun Yang a short distance to the south of Swang during which thirty men were killed and sixty wounded.

Troops Are Rushed. General Wu Sun, commander of the troops at Canton, is leading two thousand men to suppress the disturbances.

United States troops at Canton and the British consul at that city last night ordered the captains of vessels belonging to the British, lying off the city, to put out their lights should they hear firing from the fort.

Have Narrow Escape. They did this and the British gun boat "Moorhen" and awnings and spars were torn by bullets while she was engaged in protecting the electric station.

Several foreign missionaries have had narrow escapes from bullets. At San Wen there are now five hundred foreign soldiers, while on board the foreign vessels there is a force of one thousand blue jackets.

La Crosse, Wis., March 13.—With the view of developing a plan for the utilization of millions of acres of cut over lands in Wisconsin, the United States government has decided to make extensive experiments in forestry at the Sparta Military reservation according to word received here today from Congressman H. J. Egan who took up the matter with the war department and the department of agriculture.

The military reservation contains 20,000 acres a large part of which is available for the experiments which are to be made immediately at the direction of W. B. Piller, supervisor of the Marquette and Michigan National Forest Association, and are to start at once. Pines from northern Minnesota are to be planted principally.

SPECIAL EXPEDITION TO TEST ARMY SHOES

Entire Regiment Will March 112 Miles to Give a Test of "Modified Shoe."

Washington, March 13.—An entire regiment, the seventh infantry, will tramp a hundred and twelve miles in the near future to put to practical test the "modified shoe," a new type of army footwear evolved by a board of arbitrators to investigate innumerable complaints against the shoes issued to soldiers. On the march which will be made from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, one third of the men will wear the "modified shoe," one third the regulation marching shoe, and the remainder the present garrison shoe.

If the new shoe is adopted, considerable economy would result, instead of the soldiers having to buy a different shoe for garrison, marching and dress, they could get along with a pair of black and a pair of tan shoes of the same kind.

To Make Mt. Vernon Trip Cheaper. Washington, D. C., March 13.—A large delegation of the Mount Vernon Anti-Foreign Association, organized to fight the practice of charging admission to the home and tomb of George Washington, was present today before the Interstate Commerce Commission for a reduction in the electric railway fare between Washington and Mount Vernon came up for a hearing and argument. The fare is now 75 cents for the round trip, 14 miles, and 40 cents of the total is charged for the journey back and forth over three quarters of a mile of road between Millers' Station, Va., and Mount Vernon. The association demands that the charge of forty cents for that short trip be abolished entirely.

Will Demand Increase of Ten Cents A Ton and of Twenty Per Cent For Day Wages.

Des Moines, Ia., March 13.—Union miners from all the mining sections of this state are gathering here in large numbers to attend the state meeting called to meet in this city tomorrow. It seems practically a foregone conclusion that the men at their meeting will make a demand for a raise in wages of 10 cents a ton and of 20 per cent for day work. Should the operators refuse to grant the increase demanded, it is said, all work in the mines of the state will stop on April 1, until a new wage scale is agreed upon.

EXPRESS MESSENGER BALKS HOLD-UP MEN TO SETTLE STRIKE; RIOTS IN GERMANY

Kills Robber by Rush and Then Saves All Money From Other Men After Safe Has Been Blown.

San Antonio, Tex., March 13.—An express messenger named David A. Trousdale, halted the robbery of a Southern Pacific train near San Antonio early today when he trapped two henchmen who had held up the train, and then killed them.

The robbers looted the train a few miles east of San Antonio. The mail and express car and the locomotive were detached from the passenger coaches and the engineer, under cover of the robbers' guns, was compelled to run the two coaches ahead of the remainder of the train. One of the robbers, at the point of a gun, took the express messenger, Trousdale, back to the train and kept him under guard while the other robber covered the crew in the cars ahead and started to rifle the safe and express boxes.

Trousdale is said to have employed the old ruse of signaling to an innkeeper on a road back of his captor. When the robbers turned, Trousdale not a moment before the highwayman could shoot, dashed out his brains.

Then arming himself with the dead robber's gun, Trousdale waited for the return of the other bandit. After he had rifled the express boxes the second man returned to the coaches. Stopping from cover Trousdale him. All of the stolen property was recovered and the train proceeded.

Trousdale is a young man recently promoted to the express run. He lives in San Antonio.

ENGLAND IN EFFORT TO SETTLE STRIKE; RIOTS IN GERMANY

Conference of Strikers and Mine Owners Resumed Today—Laborer Killed in German Disturbance.

London, March 13.—A conference between the British coal operators and the delegates of striking miners under the auspices of several members of the cabinet and presided over by Premier Asquith was resumed this morning at the foreign office and satisfactory progress is said to have been made. No details of the proceedings have been made public, but the Premier at noon expressed his gratification at the course the negotiations were taking. The morning session lasted for two and one half hours and then the participants adjourned for luncheon.

German Striker Killed. Berlin, March 13.—At the village of Horne five miles from Bochum the striking miners threw stones and fired revolver shots at the detachment of police who were marching toward the mines which they had been ordered to protect. The police replied with their revolvers and one of the strikers was killed.

At Homborn firing occurred between the police and the strikers yesterday. Large reinforcements have arrived so that the calling out of the military troops which has been under consideration has been deferred. During the night the miners threw bottles and stones from the upper windows of houses at the police as they marched along the street escorting non-union miners to the mines.

Take Serious Turn. Since the coal miners strike in Westphalia things have taken a serious turn and already has resulted in a fatal conflict between the police and the striking miners in the district of Horne.

Demolish Stores. A large body of strikers also demolished a number of gas lamps in the town and many of the merchants were forced to barricade their doors.

Reply to Miners. New York, March 13.—The operators this morning made a final examination of the draft of their reply to the miners. They intend it is said to give in detail their reason for the refusal of the demands in their present form. The present working agreement expires at noon on March 31st.

Joint Conference. A joint conference of the authoritative operators and the committee of hard coal miners was held this afternoon when the operators refused the demands of the miners for a twenty per cent increase in wages, an eight hour day, recognition of the union and certain conditions of labor at the mines.

When asked if the mine workers intended to modify their demands, President White said, "Our demands will stand. We have no intention of modifying them."

Counter Proposition. The operators submitted a proposition that the recent agreement be continued for another three years, from April 1. The reply to the miners says in part that to grant the demands would increase the labor cost of coal about forty cents a ton.

In England. London, March 13.—A big joint conference of the delegates of the miners and the mine owners sat for four hours this afternoon at the foreign office under the presidency of Premier Asquith, without reaching any definite conclusion. They adjourned until tomorrow.

Last Night.

Tonight will be the last of the series of races by the champion speedsters at the west side rink and there will be additional interest in the entertainment on account of the rivalry between the two champions of this city and Alfred Gatz of Rockford. Both the local racers will be one mile events. Roland Clon, the Italian champion, was winner in the two mile race last evening. He came in just ahead of Fred Tyrell after a hard race the time of which was 5:50. The men showed up extremely well in the event and it is seldom that the local fans have had an opportunity to see such good work. Hurley Davidson, through whose management the races were engaged for the season here, gave another exhibition of fancy skating preceding the races last evening. The feats he performs are nothing less than marvelous and his abilities as a trickster on rollers are second to none. He will give another exhibition at the rink tonight and his performance alone will undoubtedly draw a large crowd.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Atlanta Club has signed Pitcher North Walsh, brother of "Big Ed" Walsh, of the Chicago White Sox. Edmund Lamy, the Saratoga Lake skating marvel, is also a ball player. He has signed with the Mansfield team of the Ohio State League.

Washington and Lee leads the college baseball teams in the number of games scheduled for the coming season with a list of thirty-three contests.

President Comiskey has promised the White Sox a training trip to California in the spring of 1915, the year of the Panama Exposition.

The signing of Harry Steinbrenner by Roger Bresnahan means that Harry and Mike Mowrey will fight it out for the third base job with the Cardinals.

The genuine big show of the preliminary season comes on March 30, when the New York Americans will open the new National league park in Cincinnati.

Manager McGraw has put the kibosh on poker games for big stakes among the Giants, and placed the limit at 25 cents. Failure to do this will mean $100 fine.

Now that Rock Island is out of the Three league, a new league is being talked of to be composed of Rock Island, Waterloo, Iowa City, Clinton, Cedar Rapids and Freeport.

The Boston Nationals landed in Augusta, Georgia, twenty-three strong after making the trip from New York in twenty-three hours. A double dose of "Jinks," Good Night.

Philadelphia scribe says that Pitcher Sullivan of the Athletics has more smoke than Volcanus on a blow-out. Sounds kind of fishy, but perhaps the scribe intended it for a coat.

Capito Tommy Connolly, of the American league, has been elected a member of the Citizens' party Committee at Natick, Mass. Everybody is doing it now. Even umpires are throwing their hats in the ring.

The Pittsburgh team will do the most travelling of any of the sixteen major league clubs during the coming season. Allowing 25 men on each trip, Barney Dreyfuss will have to buy 316,250 miles of transportation.

New York fans will probably come across with an automobile for Christy Mathewson some time during the coming season. By Cobb, "Nap" Lajoie, Frank Schulte and Ed Walsh have been presented with speed wagons and "Big Six" is surely entitled to one.

London is to have something new in the way of flags on top of the grandstand. The Red Sox flag will be red; Highlanders, Scotch plaid; Athletics, blue with a white elephant emblem; Detroit, orange and black; St. Louis, brown; Washington, purple; Cleveland, blue and white; Chicago White Sox, white.

WITH THE BOXERS
Billy Nolan would like to get back into the game and take the Sullivan twice under his management.

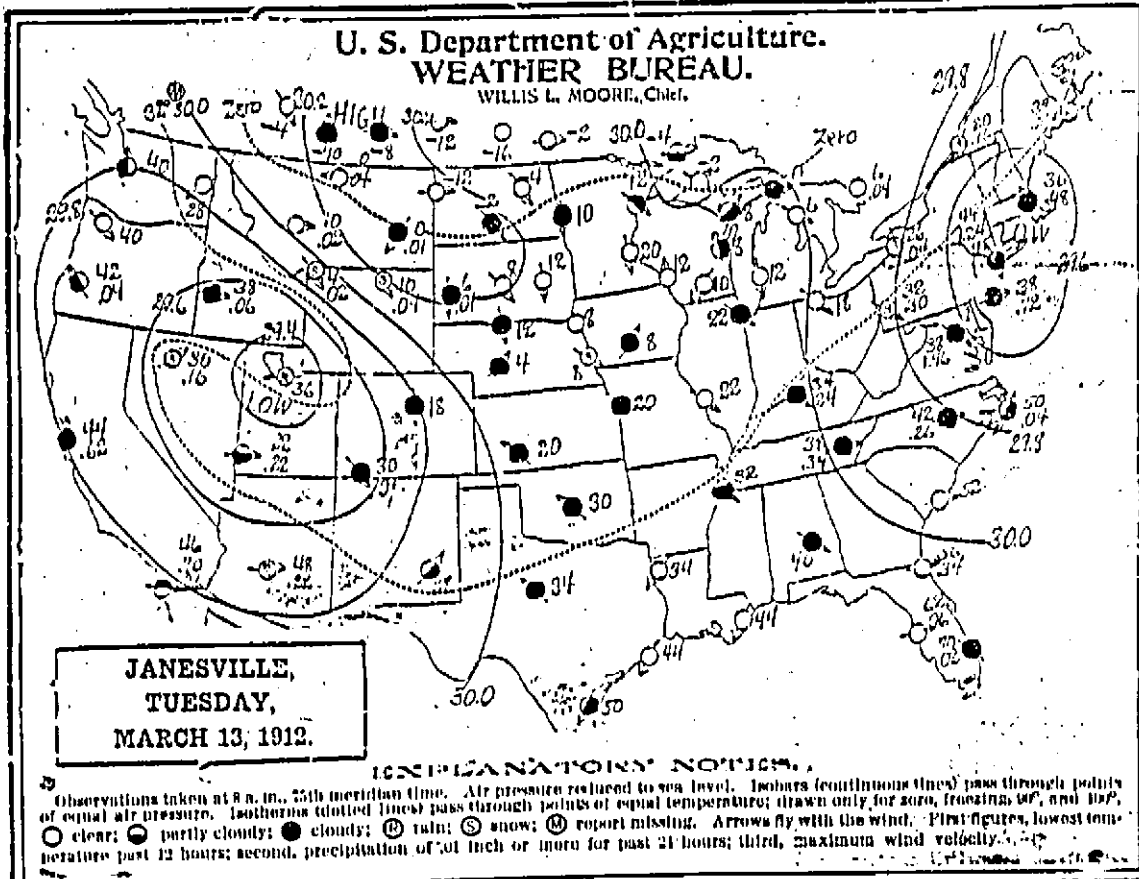

The three fighters are in and in London. The National Sporting Club, of that city, has barred colored boxers in future from competition.

They say that Battling Nelson is all in, but the old Danish gentleman continues to fight and what's more, gives the fans a run for their money.

Victory went to the Naps in two out of three games in their match with the Tigers at Hockett's alleys last night. CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

TRoubles OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

By A. W. MACY.

The Bank of England, "the greatest monetary establishment in the world," has had its troubles, notwithstanding its great financial strength. It has passed through many perils. At various times its notes have been at a heavy discount, its credit has been assailed, it has been threatened with impeachment, and it has been attacked by rioters. The first "run" on the bank occurred in 1707. Other panics or runs occurred in 1745, 1797 and 1825. In 1825 the Duke of Wellington was unpopular, and four men placarded the walls of London with the words, "To Stop the Duke, Go for Gold." Nobody knew exactly what it meant, but it produced a tremendous run on the bank. At one time the bank lost 320,000 pounds, or almost $1,500,000, through the forgeries of one man, and still more at another time, by the forgeries of another man.

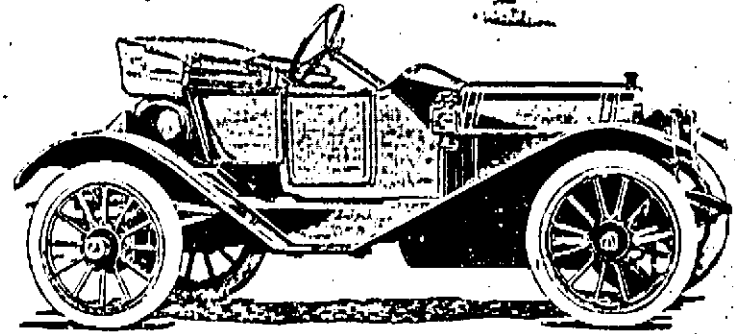

EVERY one of these LION Collars has proven a big favorite with the alert men of this Country.

The group shown above includes some of the smartest and most popular collar styles ever shown in America.

Each collar has a distinct feature of its own that saves you time and trouble. These features are found exclusively in LION Collars. If you don't know about the patented "Lock-that-Locks," and "Button-less-Back," the "Slip-Over" Button-hole, and the "Easy-Tie-Slide" space, go to your good haberdasher today and ask him about LION Collars. You'll become a LION enthusiast, too.

VERY LIKELY SO

There must be considerable to it when woman after woman and a liberal number of misses tell us enthusiastically that we are surely showing the prettiest styles in Spring Suits and Coats they have seen anywhere hereabouts. We hear it every day. But when one considers that The Big Store has opportunities to select from so many lines that other stores never can see, it is not strange that we lead the procession. Think again of how much greater assortments this store shows. We think we have just the garment to please you.

"SPRING MAID" GREENS

Those who witness the performance of the "Spring Maid" at Myers Theatre on Tuesday night, will become quite enthusiastic about the beautiful greens upon which all the costumes and stage settings are based, as have theatregoers of other larger cities. The Pastel Green of the chorus men's uniforms, the two shades of green with which the girls' gowns are trimmed, one a trifle lighter than emerald and the other seafoam, are all here in Silk Gowns, Wool Dresses, Wraps, Waists, Dress Goods, Silks, Cotton Voiles and Tissues, Trimmings, Nets, Ribbons, Hosiery, Ties and Gloves.

CANAL VERSUS RAILROAD.

Down in Washington they are having exciting times these days of the pre-presidential campaign. The Democrats in control of the House are overruling beyond the fondest hopes of the most progressive of their leaders and proposing laws and regulations that bid fair to revolutionize industry for years to come. The question of the railroads versus the Panama canal question is one that is now under consideration and the Panama canal toll bill, favorably reported by the House committee on interstate commerce, makes some provisions that are liable to cause considerable comment before the measure is finally passed upon by the senate.

Among other things it decides against the use of the waterway by ships controlled by railroad shipping combinations. In the committee discussion the point was raised that a restriction of this kind was necessary to prevent the canal traffic from falling into the hands of transportation monopolies. On the other hand, it was held that to exclude the railroads from participation in the advantages and business of the canal would be unfair to those corporations. It is evident that the terms of the proposed measure will call for some very close definitions.

Even the law-making power may not restrain the freedom of trade. The function of that power in this relation is not to array itself against any particular branch of industry, or against any particular group of persons or interests engaged in any industry, but, rather, to regulate the flow of trade so that all engaged in it may have an equal opportunity. To close the canal to vessels engaged in serving the railroads would be a concession on the part of congress of its inability to meet the situation intelligently and efficiently.

Those members of the committee who insist that a plan can be evolved which will insure competition seem to be to be in the right and deserving of popular support. There are inclined to the view that ships actually owned by the individual railroad companies should be barred from entrance to the canal, but this is very different from excluding vessels "partly" under railroad control carrying goods for more than one railroad or for other parties. If the problem that arises here is a knotty one, it is no more so than some that have been solved by the Interstate commerce commission. The railroads should not be allowed to monopolize the coast-to-coast carrying trade of the Panama canal; they are, however, entitled to the right of competing for their share of it. They should be granted no special privileges, but now they are to be denied for their freight on shipboard privileges granted all other freight passing through the waterway. It is impossible to see. The moment tolerance is given a policy of exclusion, even though it be directed against the railroads, just that moment freedom of trade on the canal is threatened. It would establish a dangerous precedent; while shutting out monopoly in one form it would encourage it in another. It seems to amount to anything they will neither of them vote for Roosevelt.

This question of deluding the people into believing that by the reassessment the taxes are to be lessened is one which should be given careful attention by all voters. It is one of vital importance to the citizens and propertyowners. Look into it Mr. Voter, before you cast your ballot for a majority candidate next Tuesday.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Janesville is on the verge of selecting candidates for the office of mayor and commissioners. Numerous names have been presented to the public for their consideration for those offices and the pros and cons of their qualifications have been discussed in their announcements and also by their adherents and personal following. It is said by eminent authorities that the voters are to be trusted. Their decision on matters of civic and national importance is final and their judgment should be respected. MISSINGS OF MARTHA. In this day and age of reform, in the increased interests of the women of the country in the question of suffrage and universal rights, in the reports of the suffragette movement in England, in the organization of a campaign committee in Rock county, it is not astonishing that one looks in the past and wonders what this is all about. When the Cavaliers of England landed in Virginia to found the tiny Jamestown colony it was to a hard, bleak life they brought their wives and children. To the savages, the forests, the conditions were all against a social life of any importance. It was a time of tribulation for men and women. True, they had slaves to do their manual labor, both white and black, but it was a period in the history of this nation when women played but an unimportant part.

Further north the Pilgrims landed on the coast of New England and hewed and fought and planted, starved and died, that they might have freedom for religious thought. It was a man's colony in which the woman played the horrible part, but still lacked the enjoyments of life. So it has been down through the pioneer days of every community. As the trend of the nation moved westward the women followed, but endured the hardships of the rough life and even today we find communities where the enjoyment of the woman is almost entirely bounded by the four walls of her home—her workshop.

The New York World takes up the story in a lighter vein, and nothing upon the vote of the Woman's Dining club of Kansas City, who decided, by a vote of 98 to 2, that women today have a better time than ever Martha Washington had, asks why there should be two adverse voices on the question and then goes on to explain. "Judged by present feminine ideals, Martha Washington must have found life pretty stupid. For one thing, she never belonged to a dining club or a mother's congress and never made a public address on 'votes for women.' She never gave a bridge party or went to a matinee in a hobble skirt. There were no societies of 'daughters' or 'daughters' for her to join and she never heard of the waltz, to say nothing of the 'turkey trot.'"

"There were, to be sure, certain old-fashioned occupations, once deemed congenial for women, in which she engaged, but being now obsolete they need not be rehearsed. It was Martha Washington's fate to live before the day of feminine emancipation, and she paid the penalty of a humdrum existence which now 'lacks the proper sympathy of her sex.' To think that the most celebrated American woman of her day never set foot in a motor car or took part in a suffrage parade or gave her views to the press on divorce or decolleté! Men are prone to hand the superior advantages of the 'good old times,' but that is a mistake women never make."

There are men in Janesville who would like to cast their vote for Theodore Roosevelt as against La Follette and Taft. They give as their reason they do not stand for the La Follette doctrine or the Taft principles, and they are to be given no opportunity of expressing their views as to what they do stand for. Wisconsin will either elect La Follette or Taft delegates at the coming spring election and if the present talk amounts to anything they will neither of them vote for Roosevelt.

This question of deluding the people into believing that by the reassessment the taxes are to be lessened is one which should be given careful attention by all voters. It is one of vital importance to the citizens and propertyowners. Look into it Mr. Voter, before you cast your ballot for a majority candidate next Tuesday.

Discovery of the South Pole with its mountains of ice would have been much more interesting if it had happened in July or August than just at this time. The question of discovery of a new vein of coal would have been far more appropriate just now.

Remember that on Tuesday next you have to make your selection on candidates for mayor and commissioners. Have you yet decided, who you will vote for?

While waiting for the people to hand him the presidential nomination Colonel Roosevelt will go out and do a little talking on the subject himself.

Germany may throw out feelers without finding any flaws in the Monroe doctrine after all.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

The Order of the Garter has been conferred upon Sir Edward Gray, of England. Such a thing as that would be almost useless in this country, where some of the statesmen never think of wearing socks.

The tallest woman in the world lives in Missouri. It isn't necessary to show her, for she can look over the heads of the crowd and see for herself.

Of all the folks in the presidential race, Joe Folk seems to have about the slightest chance at the present time.

After all, praps George Washington wasn't deserving of no great credit for confessing that he cut down that cherry tree with his hatchet, for hatchets in those days were imported from England, and very scarce, and George had the only one in the state of Virginia. VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Cabcock a World Benefactor.

Dr. S. M. Cabcock of the agricultural college is a world benefactor, but few people realize the unselfish patriotism of the man who has rejected an immense personal property that might have accrued to him in consequence of his invention of the Cabcock test, known and used by dairymen the world over.

The writer well remembers the time in 1890 while in the agricultural department of the university when the "Prof" brought a long series of experiments to a successful close and his wonderful invention turned over to the public without a patent so that the world might use it without having to pay tribute for his idea.

Manufacturers and commercial firms were tumbling over each other to get to him with fabulous salaries to join their staffs, but he steadfastly maintained that the state needed his services. To one firm who had offered much more than any of the rest he answered: "I am working on a couple of unfinished experiments and cannot accept the position."

In discussing this modest scientist the American Magazine says: "He invented in 1890 the famous milk test which bears his name—a discovery which marks him eminent in every land where modern dairymen is known."

"Come now the key of his character—humanitarianism. Greed and selfishness cannot only him. He claimed that his services belonged to the state. So he refused to take out a patent; gave it free to the farmers of the world. Meantime De Laval of Denmark patented the cream separator, a no more important invention, and has become a multi-millionaire. What a colossal fortune Dr. Cabcock put aside! Before this invention, milk—poor milk, watered milk, and rich milk—was sold by measure at a uniform price. And there was the proverbial well and pump of adulteration. Now milk is purchased on merit, the richer the product the higher the price. The 'highbrow' milk is becoming supreme. Also the Cabcock test has made the improvement of dairy machinery possible, eliminating previous wastes and losses, when ratios are based on the dairy industry of Wisconsin alone, of approximately $900,000 annually.

"Slowly the greatness of the discovery dawned on civilization. Gradually always have been behind progress. In 1905 the Wisconsin legislature annually honored him, conferring a medal in recognition of 'the great value of the people of this state and to the whole world in the inventions of Professor Stephen Moulton Cabcock of the University of Wisconsin, and his unselfish dedication of these inventions to the public service.' A year later the French government awarded him the grand prize of the national exhibition. South Australia sent him a rare painting and from the dairyman of far-off New Zealand came a volume of 'Island Songs,' the cover thoroughly inscribed: 'The Cabcock test is now in universal use in this country, and your name has consequently become a household word among New Zealand dairymen.'"

Read the above, ye howlers about the cost of the university to the taxpayers. And this, the above, is only one item among thousands, where the graduates of the University of Wisconsin have benefited mankind.

Go hang your heads with shame, old moss-backs.

PRESS COMMENT.

A Gradual Reversion.

Evening Wisconsin: The number of people who always have admired Theodore Roosevelt, but are pained by his entry into the Presidential contest of 1912 in the face of his voluntary commitment against third terms in that office is remarkably large. So is the number of those who were enthusiastic Rooseveltians till he began the revolutionary propaganda outlined in his Ossawatimbe address and continued in his sensational speech at Columbus. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is not the only former Rooseveltian who is shocked by the preposterous proposition of a recall of judicial decisions. The Roosevelt candidacy is bound to proceed with a great glare of sound, but there have been other candidates that have thundered in the index and come to nothing. In hotly attacking the initiative, referendum and recall President Taft is taking a course which will not hurt him with Americans who think.

Must Be in Line. Milwaukee Journal: Mayor Seldot quotes a statement to the effect that Clancy is a great fire fighter but "he is not in harmony with our administration." In other words, you have to vote the comrades' little ticket, otherwise your ballot work is not entitled to consideration. What tolerance!

AUTO SHOW WILL BE BIG EVENT FOR CITY

HUNDREDS OF AUTO DEALERS, OWNERS AND PURCHASERS WILL BE ATTRACTED BY EXHIBITION.

WILL OPEN TOMORROW

And Continue Throughout the Remainder of the Week.—First Event of Kind in This Section of State.

Until this year Janesville auto dealers, owners and prospective purchasers have found it necessary to attend the big automobile shows in Milwaukee and Chicago which have become fixed annual events. While these shows will continue to attract an ever-increasing number of persons interested in motor cars, it will be possible for everyone in Janesville and the surrounding country, in fact, in the northern part of the state, to attend a motor car exhibition of this magnitude in the city building in this city beginning tomorrow and continuing throughout the remainder of the week.

An Annual Event.
This is the first affair of the kind attempted by the Rock County Automobile dealers, but it promises to become an annual event which will attract state-wide attention. Over forty cars have now been entered in the show and fourteen agencies of the county are represented. All of the dealers are enthusiastic over the prospect and have entered into the undertaking with an interest that insured success from the beginning. In fact, every man is anxious to have an opportunity to display the advantages of the car which he sells at a place where other machines can be inspected by the critical purchaser.

Elaborate Decorations.
No effort or pains have been spared by Edward Amerpohl, who has had charge of the decorations, to make the show appear most attractive. Soft colored lights and lanterns will shed a soft radiance on the interior in the evening and the long streamers of bunting which have been artistically fastened from the walls and ceiling beams have also added to the general beauty effect. When the cars have been placed, the show room will be second to none in the state.

Every afternoon and evening the flower-city band will give a concert, which alone will attract large crowds. This organization of band musicians has attained a degree of popularity which is unusual in a city of this size and the band is greeted with applause on every occasion.

Is Widely Advertised.
The show has been widely advertised throughout this section of the state. As it is a county affair, the surrounding country and neighboring cities and towns will send large delegations to the show, but the fame has not stopped with the county. The event has been heralded in every city of importance in the southern part of the state and outside dealers, not included in the county membership, have asked to enter cars but have been refused. Green and Walworth counties promise to send large delegations of prospective buyers, dealers and others interested in up-to-date motor cars and in auto exhibitions. The city will be invaded by crowds of people with one mind and one purpose—automobiles, and to see the auto show. It is already the talk of the town and before the week is over you will be auto crazy if you have the "bug" at all.

Country Best Field.
Dealers in Rock county, as well as throughout the country, recognize the fact that the best field for automobile sales is in the smaller towns and cities and in the country districts. After the business men in these places have become converted to the automobile, the farmers are the next persons to fall in line and here the field is as yet almost untouched. And the farmers are slow to get the craze, but they are gradually learning of the economy and usefulness of the machine and when they have purchased these they have become the most ardent devotees of the motor car. There will be a large attendance of farmers at the show this week and the affair promises to mark an epoch in the invasion of the motor car into the country districts of Rock county.

MADISON MAN ARRESTED

HAD GOOD-SIZED PURSE

Nels Larson, fined $5 and costs this morning for intoxication, carried $120 on his person. One hundred and twenty dollars and a note for $250 that was due, was found on the person of Nels Larson who was arrested last night and pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in the municipal court this morning. Larson was let off with a fine of $5 and costs on his promise to go home at once, so as to shake and unshaken from his debauch that Judge Filshie thought seriously of giving him a full sentence, so that he could recover from its effects. Larson said he came here three or four days ago, but that he had not been drinking that long, having been visiting the police on a farm near the city. The police were somewhat mystified when they found $120 in bills in a hand stamped $500, and thought he might have had stolen a large part of the difference, but Larson explained that he did not come to Janesville with any money near that amount.

SHOEMAKER SUING TRACTION COMPANY

Seeks to Recover for Damages to Threshing Engine in Collision With Street Car.

Testimony was taken this afternoon in the case of Charles R. Shoemaker vs. the Janesville Traction Company, an action brought to recover damages incurred to the plaintiff's threshing engine in a collision with one of the street cars of the defendant company on the tracks of the company on the Hollet road between the Spring Brook bridge and the top of the South Main street hill. Mr. Shoemaker claims that it cost some $150 to repair the engine and that he lost five or six days' work with the threshing outfit as a result of the accident. It was brought out in the plaintiff's testimony who was the first witness called, that the road was narrow at this point so that it was impossible for his outfit to turn out. The accident occurred on the evening of July 17th just after sundown.

Two More Cases.
After the Shoemaker case which it was expected to finish this afternoon, there are but two more cases on the jury calendar for the present term. One of these, the case of Cheese company vs. Marty, will be tried Monday, March 18, and the other, Webster vs. Locomotive Engineers' Insurance company, will be tried at a later date. A jury will be drawn at this time.

Verdict for Smith Company.
In the case of Oscar Smith and Sons company vs. the Baiting, Mills, testimony in which was completed today, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $87.18. The case of T. P. Burns vs. Anna Lagerman, which involved an account, was heard today, and the jury was considering a verdict at half past three.

The biggest gifts reported by the colleges considered for the period under discussion, namely, the college year ended last June 30, came to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which benefits to the extent of $1,110,000 from the generosity of three donors. The University of Illinois reports that the state legislature has appropriated $3,519,500 for its support for the next two years, and has also made provision for the future of the institution by levying a one-half tax, which two years hence should allow it about $2,250,000 a year. Cornell has been authorized to work in hand which has cost $1,052,000.

The Bureau of Education's bulletin in hand notes all changes in colleges and methods of instruction of these institutions for the period under discussion; records the gifts, buildings and improvements; contains a directory of the institutions; shows the student enrollment; and inventories their property and income.

The bulletin, which is entitled "Statistics of State Universities and Other Institutions of Higher Education Partially Supported by the State for the year ended June 30, 1911," will be published by the State.

NO COUNCIL SESSION; QUORUM NOT PRESENT

Action on Sunday Theatre Opening Deferred Until Next Regular Meeting—Visiting Nurse Ordinance Drawn.

Failure to secure a quorum compelled the Common Council to adjourn last evening without receiving or passing upon the report of the committee appointed to investigate the question of opening the theatres on Sunday. This leaves consideration of the matter over to the regular meeting of the Council next Monday evening. City Attorney Maxfield has drawn up at the direction of the Council an ordinance providing for the establishment of the office of visiting nurse, which will also be submitted for action at that time. Attorney Raker, Sr., was unable to attend last night because of being indisposed, but had made arrangements so that the Council could pass upon the revised ordinance if a quorum was obtained. After this was known to be impossible Mayor Nichols and City Clerk Cummings left the attending aldermen in the Clerk's office and went to the Council room where they formally adjourned the meeting after an unrecorded roll call.

Supt. H. C. These notices will be posted in every school building of the state until the date of the expiration of the election. Over five hundred school and county officials will receive these notices with instructions to post them in the school buildings. On account of the large amount of work which Miss Elizabeth Smith, secretary of the board, has at the Madison office, the notices are sent from the office of the president here.

WISCONSIN LEADS IN INSTRUCTION CORPS

Has More Instructors Than Almost Another State Institution in The Country.

The range of salaries for the heads and faculties of state-aided institutions of higher learning in this country is given in a bulletin just issued for free distribution by the United States Bureau of Education. According to the bulletin the highest paid head of any institution of this class is the president of the University of California, who receives $12,000 a year and house. The president of Illinois University and Cornell University each receive $10,000 a year and house, while the president of the University of Minnesota gets $10,000 without house. From these figures, the president's salaries run down as low as $2,400.

The salaries of the faculty members range from $5,000 a year for the best-paid full professor, both extremes being touched at Cornell.

The Bureau of Education's bulletin shows that the United States now contains exactly one hundred universities and other institutions of higher education which depend in considerable measure on the State or Federal Government for their support. Of these sixteen are agricultural and mechanical colleges for negroes. Four of these State-aided institutions have more than four hundred members on their faculties; namely, the University of California, with a faculty of four hundred and twenty-one; the University of Illinois, with five hundred and thirty; Cornell University with six hundred and fifty-two; and the University of Wisconsin with four hundred and eighty-six.

The biggest gifts reported by the colleges considered for the period under discussion, namely, the college year ended last June 30, came to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which benefits to the extent of $1,110,000 from the generosity of three donors. NEW YORK APPLES SHOWING UP WELL

Apples Are More Plentiful And in Better Condition Than Last Year—Cucumbers and Tomatoes Here.

Apples this year are in much better shape than they were at this time last year and are also very plentiful. All of the common storage stock has been used up and the principal source of supply now is the cold storage houses at Niagara Falls, from which the best quality of apples are coming to the local wholesalers. The most plentiful varieties on the local markets are the Baldwins, Greenings, and Russets, although a few other kinds are offered at different times as specialties.

Large quantities of the apple crop now in existence is being held in the New York storage houses waiting for the prices to go higher and they will be ready for sale when the prices rise. There is a larger supply this year by far than there was last year and the larger part of the crop is of much higher quality. There is a fine assortment of box apples offered by the local merchants for eating purposes and these are selling at rather fancy prices, being mostly fancy products.

This is the best time of year for the California oranges and the navel especially are in the height of their season. Large and juicy oranges of the finest flavor are being offered at low prices and the supply is unlimited. Grapefruit are also at the best part of their season and run from small ones selling at three for a quarter to the extremely large size which bring 25 cents apiece.

In the vegetable line the cucumbers and tomatoes are holding the main place. Florida tomatoes are a luxury which a great many people enjoy at this time of year and the quality of the product makes them especially delicious. Cucumbers are being sold as low as two for a quarter and come mainly from the hot-beds at Aurora, Ill.

HEART AND HOME TALKS BY BARBARA BOYD

Dainty Refreshments For Evening Affairs.

WHAT to serve for refreshments sometimes bothers a hostess. Novelty of course is desirable, but the substantial should not be sacrificed for the novel. For, as a rule, when the time comes for refreshments, guests, especially if they have been dancing, are hungry.

Sandwiches, fried oysters, salads, cakes and ices are always stand-bys, with chocolate, coffee, grape-jules, lemonade and fruit punch for drinks. On this foundation, one can ring in much variety as is desired, and serve these things in as dainty a fashion as possible. The question of cost largely controls this.

For sandwiches, the bread should of course be cut thin, and the crusts be removed. They are daintier in appearance, if the bread is cut in pretty shapes. Salad sandwiches, and those with any sort of soft filling, should not be made until about ready to be served, if possible.

A very delicious sandwich which was evolved by the hostess and which won unqualified commendation at a little affair recently, was made of chopped nuts and raisins mixed with plain gelatin. The nuts were a mixture of English walnuts, almonds, Brazil nuts, and peanuts, ground in a chopper in moderate sized pieces. The gelatin was seeded and cut into small pieces. The gelatin was the plain, clear kind, flavored with lemon and orange. It was made very stiff, the nuts and raisins mixed in it, and the whole spread, at the last minute, between the buttered bread.

Cocoanut sandwiches are delicious. To make them, take a cupful of freshly grated cocoanut, half a cupful of nuts ground fine, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, two teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar, and three tablespoonfuls of thick cream worked in. Spread this mixture between the bread and butter.

Grated cheese creamed with an equal quantity of butter spread on thin slices of bread, and sprinkled with minced watercress is appetizing.

A very good filling for sandwiches may be made of two cupfuls of cream or milk, two large tablespoonfuls of flour, the yolks of four eggs, butter the size of an egg, a teaspoonful each of salt and mixed mustard, and pepper to taste. Beat the yolks of the eggs first, then mix in the other ingredients, and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly to prevent lumps. When cool beat in the juice of one lemon. Then add any finely ground meat that may be preferred. Finely chopped watercress, lettuce, celery or olives may also be added if wished. Spread the mixture between bread and butter and you have substantial, delicious and appetizing sandwiches.

For a salad a little out of the ordinary, take a small can of French peas and stew gently in their own liquor. Season with salt, pepper and a pinch of sugar. When the liquor has been all absorbed, cool, and then add a half pound of English walnut kernels chopped. Pour over the mixture a half cupful of mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves.

Another delicious salad is made of crisp white lettuce leaves, sliced red peppers, chopped olives and a few slices of cucumbers. For this, use a French dressing.

A little more substantial is a salad made of chopped pecan nut kernels mixed with twice their bulk of cream cheese. Add a little thick cream to aid their mixing. Season with pepper and salt and make into tiny balls. Pare good tart apples, remove cores and slice into rings about half an inch thick. Arrange the slices of apple on lettuce leaves, and put a cheese ball in the center of each. Serve with a French dressing, made with lemon juice instead of vinegar.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

I DO really enjoy being confronted with the other person's point of view. The more logical and sensible it is, the better I like it.

A few weeks ago I wrote about the young couple who think they must have everything about the home better and more expensive than that which contented their parents, even though said parents have a much larger income than the young folks. For this tendency I rebuked the young people and advised them to be content with what was good enough for their fathers and mothers. One of my readers has a different point of view on this matter, and presents it in this interesting letter:

"Don't you think," he or she writes, "possibly the 'extravagance' of many young people in starting in a new home of their own is a revolt against the ugly, cheap things which they have been all their lives obliged to live with, when in many cases a small expenditure entering in their growth in taste and ideas of beauty could have been made by parents without any undue strain on the income, 'double what the young man' receives? Parents have become accustomed by the time their children are grown up, to a certain way of living—in many cases the standard is much lower than the income warrants—furniture collects, methods of serving meals are as 'we have always done it,' therefore, don't let us change. The young people grow tired of the world, unbecomingly way of doing things, and when they do have a chance to start out with fresh, new things, determine to have the best possible for themselves, and probably in many cases, to have the best for their children, as they would like to see them grow up in the same way. In many cases it has always been good enough for me, why should it be for my children? I realize perfectly that this is no reason for people living beyond their income and all young people ought to start with an education in which they are often deficient, but maybe it accounts for some of the extra expenditure."

ONE OF YOUR READERS.

When I wrote about the words that I liked, I concluded with the appeal: "What are your favorite words?" To publish all the lists that were sent in would take quite too much space, but I want to pass on the interesting fact that in practically every case, "home" led the list. They say that the Americans are coming to be a gadabout, undomestic people who chase the will-o'-the-wisp amusement everywhere, instead of staying at home and finding real happiness in the household. Surely this exaltation of the mere word "home" is a pointer in the opposite direction.

One woman, who also loves my favorite, "peace," gives such a beautiful and inspiring reason for her preference that I want you to hear it. "My two favorites," she writes, "are 'home' and 'peace.' I don't really know which comes first in my mind, as one seems earthly and the other not of this world. 'Happiness, children, joy, laughter' etc., are all symbolized by the word 'home,' at least to me, and my chief aim in life is to have it mean the same to my husband and babies. 'Peace' to me means more the reward for human endeavor, and the greatest sermon to me is the look on the face of an earthly saint who is of those who 'having finished their course in peace do now rest from their labors.'"

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Some Important Points in Preparing Spinach for the Table.

By Allen E. Whitaker.

Spinach is unusually high this year yet it is so valuable that it cannot be left entirely out of the season's menu. It is one of the best succulent vegetables and is especially useful when starched vegetables are forbidden.

The inexperienced woman is warned not to turn away from spinach that shows a good amount of sand clinging to it for if very clean it may have been wilted and soaked to make it appear better.

If the sand clinging to fresh spinach is not well washed out the vegetable is not pleasant to eat. The best way to get rid of the sand is to have two pans filled with cold water; pick the vegetable over carefully, discarding wilted leaves and cutting off the roots, then put it into one pan of water and lift it up and down. Finally drop into the second pan and rinse out the first pan which will have considerable sand settled in it. After rinsing the spinach well in the second pan return to the first filled with water. Repeat until no sand is seen in the water and this may mean as many as six or seven rinsings.

Some vegetables should be cooked in plenty of water but spinach is not one of these, as it is valuable for its mineral salts and these are washed away in an excess of water.

No more water is needed than clings to the leaves after washing. Set over a moderate fire and in about fifteen minutes the spinach is usually tender, when it can be cut against the side of the pan with a fork it is done. It is spoiled by over cooking which reduces the leaves to a pulp that is lost to some degree by draining.

Drain cooked spinach, chop rather fine with a knife and season with salt, a trifle of pepper and some butter. It is often garnished with hard-boiled eggs and sometimes with artichokes to make a luncheon dish. To serve it mollied and hot, first chop and season, then fill the buttered molds and set them in a pan of boiling water for a minute. Unmold on a serving dish and garnish.

Cold spinach molded in cups makes an excellent salad. Garnish each with a little daisy made from stiff yolk of a hard-boiled egg and the white cut in little strips. Dress with oil and vinegar.

Another way to prepare the salad is to lay two lettuce leaves on a plate then a thin slice of tongue on these and last the small mold of cold spinach. Serve with French dressing. Plain salad is made with the addition of boiled dressing.

For something fancy add a slightly rounded tablespoon of butter to two cups of cooked and chopped spinach also one-quarter teaspoon of salt, a few grains of pepper and one beaten egg. Spread on a plate to cool then form into small rolls or cones and roll each in fine sifted bread crumbs, then in an egg beaten with a tablespoon of water, and again in the crumbs. Fry a few at a time in a frying basket. Have the fat smoking hot and cook but one minute as the mixture needs browning only.

Cream of spinach is an especially good soup for spring. Put two quarts of well washed spinach into a sauce pan with no more water than clings to it. Cook ten or fifteen minutes then press through a pure strainer and add any water or juice of the vegetable in the pan.

Heat three and a half cups of milk in a double boiler and add one-quarter cup of flour made smooth in one-half cup of cold milk and cook ten minutes or while the spinach is cooking. Season with one-quarter cup of butter, a level teaspoon of salt, a trifle of pepper and add the sifted spinach. Cook three minutes and serve.

Blessed is the hand that prepares a pleasure for a child, for there is no saying when and where it may bloom forth.

The daily problem of keeping within a certain allowance and seeing that nothing is wasted is a constant one.

When you have a few sweet potatoes left from a meal, slice them, sprinkle with brown sugar and bits of butter and bake in the oven.

Escalloped potatoes prepared from cold boiled potatoes and a little white sauce and onion juice sprinkled with green peas, also a left-over, makes another appetizing dish.

When you have a little strong cream cheese left over, grate it and mix with a beaten white of egg, season with salt, cayenne and pack in the cheese jars or serve on crockets of toast and heat. To be served with tea.

Ginger bread baked in thin sheets, cut in rounds and put together sandwich fashion with cream or cottage cheese make delicious little tea cakes.

When a little pastry is left and one has time to do it, very pretty little baskets may be made by putting the pastry over inverted patty pans and baking. For the handles, twist the pastry in strips and lay around a baking powder can to bake. Fill the baskets with preserves or ices and insert the handles. These make very effective desserts.

If one has a bit of orange marmalade left over, add it to the mince meat.

Cold vegetables of all kinds may be converted into good salads. If there are several varieties, season and pile them in groups with parsley in between. Carrots, green peas and potatoes, a few of each, in this way make a good mixed salad, and one can take the preferred vegetable when being served.

When making a dessert for dinner, like a custard, just do not add the sugar until some of the thickened custard is removed, and that may be flavored with vanilla and sweetened. The rest may be seasoned for salad dressing, the one process doing for both dishes.

FURTHER WARNING ABOUT FASTING.

The editor of Good Health warns against fasting without the advice of a physician. He says that whether one eats or not he must consume a certain amount of matter to supply heat and energy and that the faster is in reality gnawing his own bones and that the kidneys are congested with an excess of waste which they fail to eliminate. He would advise special diets rather than fasting, though admitting that short fasts are beneficial in certain cases. Dr. Baesler, a stomach specialist, in the Cyclopaedia and Bulletin of Medicine, aims to show that Up-ton Sinclair's advice on fasting is bad, mentioning a case in which serious injury resulted. Dr. Robinson, editor of the Critic and Guide, also points out some dangers of fasting. Fasting, like every other remedy, has its limitations and its dangers, and no two cases require the same treatment. Sinclair and other advocates of fasting have advised supervision by a physician in all cases. Several cases of serious injury from prolonged fasting have come under my observation, suggesting the advisability of the same caution that is requisite in the application of any other remedy.

How to Keep Sponges Sweet and Springy

Most people find sponges hard to keep clean and free from slime, and for this reason have discarded them entirely. However, it is easy to keep them clean and sweet if—in addition to rinsing in clean, warm water after being used—they are boiled once a week in water to which has been added a teaspoonful of Gold Dust washing powder, and then rinsed through several clear, warm waters. Wash-cloths should also be boiled in Gold Dust suds and thoroughly rinsed, sunned and ironed. Those of thin linen crash are more desirable than heavy ones.

Danger In Delay

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Janesville People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, humbling, urinary troubles, dropsy, and Bright's disease, follow as the kidneys get worse. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with the reliable and safe remedy Doan's Kidney Pills which has cured people right here in Janesville.

Benjamin Shallerross, 269 S. River St., Janesville Wis., says: "Two years ago I had a great deal of trouble from inactive kidneys. The secretions from my kidneys contained sediment and were otherwise discolored. My back became so lame that it was difficult for me to stoop or lift and I became all run down. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time, these symptoms of kidney complaint disappeared and I enjoyed much better health. I could not be induced to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills were I not certain of their merits."

No More Constipation --WHEE!

It's Me for Olive Tablets!

"That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated tablets.

They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action.

It is easy to compel bowel and liver activity for a time with calomel and nasty, sickening, griping castor oil, but the after effects are dangerous, and the real cause of the trouble is often not even touched.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are so easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them.

REMARKABLE PLAY AT MYERS LAST EVENING

"The Servant in The House" Proves Strong Play With Excellent Cast at Myers Last Evening.

What was perhaps one of the best plays of the sort which has been given here this year was witnessed by a small audience last night at the Myers Opera House, when Chas. Hann Kennedy's famous production "The Servant in The House," was presented under the direction of Hugo H. Koch. As the leading man of the play, Mr. Koch gave a remarkable interpretation of the part of Mansson, the new butler, and he was supported by the other characters in a most pleasing manner. Don Merrifield in the role of Robert Smith, the degenerate brother and drain man, was one of the strongest players of this excellent company and carried his part through with such reality and force that the lesson which the author attempted to bring out made a lasting impression on the minds of the audience. Eleanor Franklin as the Vicar's wife who had been working for his good and not that of the Church accomplished the performance of that quiet change from blindness to sight in a manner which showed considerable ability as an actor.

Altogether the company were well chosen for their parts and the spirit of the play was carried out in a most striking manner. "God isn't looking—let's give us little as possible and grab as much as we can." In the sentiment which gradually changes through through the instrumentality of Mansson until the true light takes its place. The truthness to life, the force with which the play was written, and the great lesson taught left an impression upon those who attended the performance last evening which they will remember for some time.

"Not unless she is obliged," answered the maiden.

"I'm! I hadn't thought of that," he said, after a pause.

"But, George," she said, laying her hand affectionately upon his arm and looking into his eyes, "you, I am sure, will never force me to that humiliation."

"No—or—that is to say—of course not."

The ice was broken and three minutes later George was Jennie's accepted—London Telegraph.

Very Awkward.

"You made a mistake in your paper," said the indignant man, entering the editorial sanctum. "I was one of the competitors at the athletic match yesterday, and you have called me the well-known lightweight champion."

"Well, aren't you?" said the editor.

"No, I'm nothing of the kind; and it's confounded awkward, because, you see, I'm a coal merchant."

Not Compelled to Speak.

"Pa, do you know anything about the Thirty Years' war?"

"No, son. Your mother and I have only been married 15 years."

Janesville Gazette, March 13, 1872.—Horticulturists in the vicinity of Des Moines say that the late storm has seriously damaged the fruit crop.

It is asserted that Prince Frederick Charles, of Prussia, while in Rome, recently asserted his claims to the candidacy to the throne of Spain.

It is stated that the French government is negotiating with the government of Berlin, with a view of antipathing the full payment of the war indemnity, thereby securing the complete evacuation of the Germans from France.

The city council of Portage has granted permission to a company to use certain streets for street railway.

Port Atkinson has voted the proposed rail to the Wisconsin Central railroad by a majority of 253.

The surveyors of the Northwestern Company have run a line from Iron Ridge through Mayville and along the eastern side of Horicon Marsh to Oakfield station, on the Wisconsin Central.

A road on this line will make a direct route from Fond du Lac to Milwaukee and will probably be put through if the local road is.

Carried Off Dickens Debris.

Everybody knew Dickens. He could not dine in public without attracting attention. When he left the dining-room, his admirers would descend upon his table and carry off eggshells, orange peels and other things that remained behind, so that they might have memorials of this great and much loved writer.—Munsey's.

GAVE FINE ACCOUNT OF AFRICAN TRAVEL

DR. GEORGE L. COLLIE OF DELOIT
COLLEGE SPOKE AT MEET-ING OF TWILIGHT CLUB.

COUNTRY AND PEOPLE

Told of Peculiar Geological Formation of Great Plateau and Described People and Their Life.

Dr. George L. Collie, professor of geology at Deloit college, gave an address of unusual interest at the meeting of the Twilight Club at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening on the subject, "The Great Plateau of East Africa and the People Who Inhabit It." Alexander E. Matheson, leader of the meeting, stated in introducing the speaker that the club was especially favored in subject of which there is so little generally known. Dr. Collie returned about a year and a half ago from a trip through this section, traveling on foot and entirely unaided, in the interests of science. It was an unusual adventure, the leader said, which required more than the ordinary amount of courage and bravery, and is to be contrasted with the hunting expeditions in which the white men are surrounded by great retinues of guides and servants.

Travelled on Foot.
Dr. Collie's lecture was illustrated with numerous lantern slides which gave an accurate reproduction of the character of the country and the people of British East Africa. By way of introduction, the speaker stated that he made the trip from Mombasa, the seaport on the Indian Ocean, to Nairobi, the capital of the province on the shore of Lake Victoria Nyanza, entirely on foot, and unaided. It was only possible for him to do this by following the narrow gauge railroad which has been built, this entire distance, by the British government and is known as the Uganda railway.

He secured permission to travel along the right of way of the road, and always planned to spend his nights at the rest houses which the company has erected at intervals of fifteen miles along the road. These furnished a shelter, although they were extremely filthy. Every hundred miles there were dining stations where it was possible for him to secure food and water. Oftentimes he had to fall back on the natives for food supplies, eating the peculiar sort of bread which they baked on hot stones, like pancakes, and eating fruit of all varieties, which was usually very good. In this manner, Dr. Collie stated that he was able to make the trip with comparative ease and comfort.

In a Great Plateau.
In describing the nature of the country, the speaker explained that the entire interior of Africa was a great plateau. There are few mountain ranges, although there are many high peaks, which are usually volcanoes. The borders of the continent are sometimes quite low, as is noted at Tangiers, and in the region of the Suez canal.

This level character of the interior of the country is of especial interest to geologists, because of the great plateau which is generally arid, with little rainfall. The rock is called gneiss. It is coarse and crumpled, and the indications are that great mountain ranges have been swept down level in some manner. But there are few streams, and it is evident that the process was not accomplished by means of water.

Another curious geological formation was indicated by the speaker. A long rift, or valley, extending from the Zambesi river as far north as Antioch, Syria, a distance of fifty degrees, or three thousand five hundred miles, including the Red and Dead seas, is generally bounded by abrupt and nearly perpendicular cliffs. The formation is technically known as a "fault," and was apparently caused by a dropping or breaking of the rock. In doing this, it appears that great areas of lava were forced out on either side of the rift, and in British East Africa alone there are seventy-five thousand square miles covered with this lava, which pushed in and into Lake Victoria Nyanza.

Not For White Man.
The whole character of the country, the speaker stated, and emphasized with the pictures shown, is regular and monotonous. The whole region is a plain broken by mountain or volcanic peaks and ridges which rise in a series of terraces. The vegetation is scarce, owing to lack of rainfall, but the whole region is inhabited with all kinds of wild game—hens, leopards, rhinos, antelopes, zebras, and many other animals in great number.

Dr. Collie stated that he disagreed with Col. Roosevelt, who has said that this is a white man's country. On the contrary, the speaker stated that the country was not fitted to agriculture for the white man. Irrigation was almost absolutely necessary in any place, and the conservation of water could be made only with immense cost. And another reason for the country's inaccessibility to the white man is that the land has been exhausted to a large extent by the natives, who are continually moving after they have exhausted the land in a given territory.

The real function of the territory, according to Prof. Collie, is as a great game preserve and in his opinion, the British government should keep it for such, as they were doing in a great degree, although he believed they should discourage the coming of settlers.

In regard to natives.
The natives and their manner of living were described and numerous pictures served to make plain their primitive condition. Some of the people are part Arab and part Negro, others are pure Negro, with various tribes, and another class found in the Hindu, or the Indian who was brought over from Hindustan by the British to build the railroad and who have become the great business men and traders of the region. The real natives are in a very backward state of civilization. Their clothes, ideas of ornamentation, methods of work, and modes of life, are of the most primitive style. They have not advanced beyond the stage of bartering and the market places are among the familiar sights of the country.

Prof. Collie gave numerous lantern slides and experiences of his travel and told a great deal about this generally unknown region. He told of the unusual insect life, and the numerous species of vermin and insects. He also spoke of the wind storms and stated that these being very frequent were, perhaps, responsible for the wearing down of the mountain ranges. He spoke of one occasion when he wandered from the railway track and was lost. A cyclone came up and as he was making for a forest he came upon an Englishman's ranch and was saved, for had he gone to the forest he would doubtless never have returned, so his rescue stated.

His whole journey was replete with interesting and curious experiences, and his address gave a wonderful insight into this peculiar territory. A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to him by the Twilight Club at the close of the meeting.

SEASONABLE ADVICE TO MEN ENGAGED IN POULTRY BUSINESS

F. J. Holt Treats Some of the Problems of Setting and Hatching
In First of a Series of Articles.

F. J. Holt has been engaged to write a series of articles in regard to the poultry business which will appear in the Gazette at regular intervals. It is the plan to give some valuable suggestions and advice in regard to the spring chicken season and to treat some of the problems which arise. The interest aroused in the chicken business in this section has been very great as was shown by the large exhibition at the Southern Wisconsin Poultry association's show. Mr. Holt's first article is on the topic, "A Few Seasonable Remarks," and is as follows:

A Backward Season.
This is the season of the year when the poultryman tries to outdo his neighbor, by getting out the first hatch of chicks. Do not be in too much of a hurry, as the season has not even started and the regular season will come soon and then the time for setting birds will be at hand. This spring's chicken season is very backward, not only in this section, but all over the country. This will make the hatching of chicks much later, which will mean an extra effort on the part of those who wish to make a showing of young stock at the fall fairs. But the large majority of the people who raise chicks will do so for their own pleasure and small profit, without any thought of the fancy.

Those who are about to keep a few birds for the first time must not wait to put in their order for eggs for hatching. The order should be sent in now, with 25 per cent of the cost of the eggs, and then you will surely get the eggs when you want them. Remember that the sellers will ship in the relation that the orders come to them and so the early order will get the preference. Carefully select the breed you wish to raise and then select to that one variety. Get eggs from the best breeder that you can, depending upon the amount of money that you feel you wish to invest. The work you must do comes, as soon as those eggs are received.

Upon receiving the eggs unpack them carefully to see if any are broken. If you find that there are some broken ones report the matter to your express agent and then report the matter to the shipper. Put in a claim with the agent for the value of the broken eggs and let him collect the amount for you. Then place the rest of the eggs in a place where the temperature is about 50 to 60 degrees and allow them to stand for at least twenty-four hours before you set them. This is necessary so as to get the eggs' contents in a settled condition. Be very careful in handling these eggs for it is such a thing as a little kerensene should come in contact with one it may never hatch.

Regarding incubators.
I have had a great many ask me about setting an incubator. My advice is to be sure and run that machine for at least two or three days, so that it is in perfect shape, before putting the eggs into it. When you have regulated the machine so that its temperature remains at 103, place the eggs into it and do not turn them the first two days. Beginning the morning of the third day, turn those eggs at least twice a day and cool them for at least ten minutes, at each turning, for the first five days. After that gradually lengthen the cooling time, so that by the 15th day you will be cooling the eggs from 25 to 35 minutes. The 17th day make the time 45 minutes, and an hour for the 18th day. It is assumed that the room in which the machine is being run is up to 60 degrees. The evening of the 18th day take the tray of eggs and put it into a tub of water, the temperature of which is 70 degrees, for 10 seconds. Then put the tray back into the machine and leave it alone. The thermometer may act up for some time after this has been done but do not get alarmed. Do not open the machine again until the evening of the 21st day unless it is a case of great necessity.

If you are to use a hen in the hatching process you will have to have a great deal of patience. The best arrangement that I know of is to build a long box, as long in feet as you have room to set. Place partitions every foot, making the nest 12 inches square. Then make a wire 12 inches high and make a wire 12 inches wide, and about six feet long. This confines the hen to a small run and allows her but the one nest to which she might go after eating. This box arrangement may be set anywhere upon the ground or inside of a building. It is better to have it on the ground if possible. Then get a piece of sod about 10 inches square and place it in the nest with the cross side down. Upon this sod place good chaff. Put in a glass egg and let the hen make the nest. Then it is time to place the eggs under her. Do this last work at night.

Certain Kinds of Bonds Are the Only Securities Accepted By the U. S. Government For the Funds of Its Postal Savings Banks

YOU want to loan $500 or more, at 5% or 5½% interest—then be as careful as the Government is in what security you loan money on—and accept only the security that the government accepts.

We will sell you one $500 bond, or one $1000 bond—or any amount you wish of these securities.

These bonds are pledges of the public and private property, the integrity, and the taxes of a city or town—is that sufficient security for your money?

The interest and principal are both paid by a Tax levied against all real estate and all personal property in the city.

These Municipal Bonds Pay 5 and 5½ per cent (Interest Paid Every Six Months)

And they can be sold at a moment's notice, for they meet the requirements of the U. S. Government as security for the deposits of its Postal Savings Banks, and that makes them as transferable as gold dollars.

You want further details about these bonds—and you shall have them at once.

To those who have given little attention to "what is a bond" or to "why the Government so strictly confines itself to certain kinds of bonds as securities for its Postal Banks," we offer our Gift Booklet.

This book is not written in technical bond language—it is just plain newspaper English, written for everybody, from the College Professor to the Schoolboy.

We especially recommend these bonds to those men and women who wish absolute security, good interest, and freedom from investments that demand time and attention.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for councilman at the coming primary election and would state that there is no one behind me, or that is working for me—that would have to be rewarded with soft jobs at the expense of the city. I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Mayor of the City of Janesville, at the coming primaries to be held on the 19th day of March, 1912.

To the Citizens of Janesville:
Identifying the responsibility of the office I am about to seek and fully conscious of the duties of said office, and with a full belief that I could bring to said office a knowledge gained by long experience in the municipal affairs of our city, which would be of material benefit to the taxpayers and citizens in general, and particularly, now that we are about to enter upon a new form of government.

Therefore I seek the nomination and election to the office of Mayor. Should I be entrusted with the Honorable and important duties of said office, I can only promise, to the best of my ability, an honest, economical, industrious and faithful administration of its duties in a plain, business-like manner. Soliciting the support of my fellow citizens and submitting my past public record to stand in judgment of my future actions, I am,

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Paid advertisement; amount paid, $1.25 each insertion.

1. I have been a resident of Janesville for 15 years and during all of that time I have been engaged in business.

2. Having made a success of my private business I feel warranted in presenting myself to the consideration of the voters.

3. If elected a commissioner I will dispose of my private business and devote both my time and attention to the affairs of the city. I will have no divided interest.

4. My platform is simply a pledge to the citizens of Janesville that if elected I will strive to give this city a decent business like administration of its affairs both commercial and governmental.

5. I have made no pledges, nor promises in any interest and if elected will be free to act honestly in behalf of the whole city.

6. I have no pet notions to work out. I prefer to meet the problems as they arise in a spirit of justice and with an eye single to the best interests of the whole city. I've noticed in the past that many candidates full of promises have fallen short in performance. My only promise is to do the work of this office honestly and in all respects to the best of my ability.

WILLIAM T. FLAHERTY.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Paid advertisement; amount paid for each insertion, $1.25.

At the request of many friends I have decided to announce myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor at the primary election to be held March 19, 1912.

It is due the voters and tax payers to know what I stand for, and what I will attempt to do in accomplishing it.

First, I believe in a conservative, economical business administration where every dollar expended represents a dollar in value.

Second, I believe in the impartial enforcement of law without fear or favor and that no line of business should be exempt.

Third, I believe that the number of saloons in Janesville makes it necessary for the man engaged in the business to resort to all sorts of devices to make a living. The number should be reduced and the men that are licensed should understand that offenses will not be tolerated. Obey the law or forfeit the license.

Fourth, the city is polluted with dives and gambling houses, with slot machines and other devices which ruin our boys and young men. These conditions should not exist and they need not.

I believe that my experiences for the past 35 years with men and affairs, qualifies me to render the city, which has long been my home, efficient service. I ask your support at the polls.

JOHN W. PETERS.

THE WAY OF A MAN

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1907, by the Oeding Publishing Company

"By Jove," he said, "here you are again! Am I your shadow, Mr. Cowles, or are you mine? It is really singular how we meet. I'm awfully glad to meet you, although I don't in the least see how you've managed to get here ahead of me."

"I explained to him the changes of my plans that had been brought about by the accident to the River Belle. Lieutenant Belknap tells me that you are going through to Laramie with him," I added. "As it chances, we have the same car. It is my purpose also to call on Colonel Meriwether there in case we do not meet him coming down."

"How extraordinary! Then we'll be fellow travelers for a time and, I hope, have a little sport together. Fine young fellow, Belknap. You'll eat at our mess tonight, of course. That's our first stop over there, and I'm thinking the cook is nearly ready. There comes Belknap now."

The confusion of these varied meetings had kept me from learning the identity of the late passenger of the ambulance. I presume both Orme and Belknap supposed that the young lady and I had met before we took our places on the ground at the edge of the blanket which served as a table. I caught a glance at her face, which the next instant was hid by the rim of her hat as she looked down, removing her long gloves. At least I saw her hands—small hands, sun browned now. On one finger was a plain gold ring with a peculiar setting—the figure of a rose carved deep into the gold.

"After all," thought I to myself, "there are some things which cannot be duplicated, among these half like this, a profile like this, a figure like this." I gazed in wonder, then in certainty.

No; there was no escaping the conclusion. This was not another girl, but the same girl seen again.

Belknap caught the slight restraint as the girl and I both raised our eyes. "Oh, I say, why—what in the heaven—Mr. Cowles, didn't you—that is, haven't you?"

"No," said I, "I haven't and didn't. I think. But I think also."

The girl's face was a trifle flushed, but her eyes were merry. "Yes," said she, "I think Mr. Cowles and I have met once before." She slightly emphasized the word "once," as I noticed.

"But still I may remind you all, gentlemen," said I, "that I have not yet heard this lady's name and am only guessing, of course, that it is Miss Meriwether, whom you are taking out to Laramie."

"Why, of course," said Belknap, and "Of course," echoed everybody else.

"Yes," said she, "I'm going on out to join my father on the front. This is my second time across, though. Is it your first, Mr. Cowles?"

"My first, and I am very lucky. You know I also am going out to meet your father, Miss Meriwether."

"How singular!" She put down her tin cup of coffee on the blanket.

"My father was an associate of Colonel Meriwether in some business matters back in Virginia."

"Oh, I know—it's about the coal lands that are going to make us all rich some day. Yes, I know about that, though I think your father rarely came over into Alabama."

Under the circumstances I did not care to intrude my personal matters, so I did not mention the cause or explain the nature of my mission in the west. "I suppose that you rarely came into our country either, but went down the Shenandoah when you journeyed to Washington?" I said simply.

"I have never met Colonel Meriwether." As we rose from the ground at the conclusion of our meal the girl dropped one of her gloves. I hastened to pick it up, walking with her a few paces afterward.

"The next time we are shipwrecked together," said I, "I shall leave you on the boat. You do not know your friends!"

"Why do you say that?"

"And yet I know you at once. I saw the ring on your hand and recognized it. It is the same I saw in the flashlight on the river bank the night we left the Belle."

"How brilliant of you! At least you can remember a ring."

"I remember seeing the veil you wear once before—at a certain little meeting between Mr. Orme and myself."

"You seem to have been a labor-dasher in your time, Mr. Cowles! Your memory of a lady's wearing apparel is very exact. I should feel very much flattered." None the less I saw the dimple come in her cheek.

She was pulling on her glove as she spoke. I saw embroidered on the garment the figure of a red heart.

"My memory is still more exact in the matter of apparel," said I. "Miss Meriwether, is this your emblem indeed—this red heart? It seems to me I have also seen it somewhere before."

"When Columbus found America," she answered, "it is said that the savages looked up and remarked to him, 'Ah, we see you are discovered!'"

"Yes," said I; "you are fully discovered—each of you, all of you, all three or four of you—Miss Ellen Meriwether."

"But you did not know it until now—until this very moment. You did not know me, could not remember me, not even when the masks were off. Ah, it was good as a play!"

"I have done nothing else but remember you."

"How much I should value your acquaintance, Mr. Cowles of Virginia! How rare an opportunity you have given me of seeing on the inside of a man's heart!" She spoke half bitterly, and I saw that in one way or other she must revenge.

"I do not understand you," I rejoined.

"No! I suppose you men are all alike—that any one of you would do the same. It is only the last girl, the nearest girl, that is remembered. Is it not so?"

"It is not so," I answered.

"How long will you remember me this time—me or my clothes, Mr. Cowles—until you meet another?"

"All my life," I said, "and until I meet you again in some other infinite variety. Each last time that I see you makes me forget all the others, but never once have I forgotten you."

"In my experience," commented the girl, "all men talk very much alike."

"Yes, I told you at the masked ball," said I, "that some time I would see you, masks off. Was it not true? I did not at first know you when you broke up my match with Orme, but I swore that some time I would know you. And when I saw you that night on the river it seemed to me I certainly must have met you before, have known you always, and now?"

"My experience with men," he said to this sage young person, "leads me to believe that they are the stupidest of all created creatures. There was never one, there is never one, when a girl does not notice a man who is well, who is talking nonsense."

"Very well, then," I broke out. "I admit it. I did take notice of four different girls, one after the other, but it was because each of them was fit to wipe out the image of all the others—and of all the others in the world."

"This was going far. I was a young man, I tried no more excuse. I am willing down simply the truth, as I have promised."

The girl looked about gladly. I thought, at the sound of a shuffling step approaching. "You, Aunt Mandy," she called out. And so we, "I must say good night, sir."

I could not sleep. I looked up again into the eyes of my cold, reproving star. But now, to my surprise and horror, when I looked into the eye of my monitor my own eye would not waver or admit subjection. I rebelled at my own complacency. I, John Cowles, had all my life been a strong man. Now, tonight, I was meeting the strongest antagonist of all my life, the only one I had ever feared. It was none other than I myself, that other John Cowles, young man, and now loose in the vast free garden of living.

Yet I fought with myself. I tried to banish her face from my heart—with all my might and all my conscience and all my remaining principles I did try. I entreated to mind my promises, my duties, my honor. But none of these would put her face away. I tried to forget the softness of her voice, the fragrance of her hair, the sweetest of her body once held in my arms, all the vague charm of woman, the enigma, the sphinx, the mystery magnet of the world, the charm that has no analysis, that knows no formula. But I could not forget. A rage filled me against all the other men in the world. I have said I would set down the truth. The truth is that I longed to rise and roar in my throat, challenging all the other men in the world. In truth, it was my wish to stride over there just beyond into the darkness to take this woman by the shoulders and tell her what was in my blood and in my heart—even though I must tell her in bitterness and self reproach.

It was not the girl to whom I was pledged and pledged, not she to whom I was bound in honor. That was not the one with the fragrant hair, and the eyes of night, and the clear cut face, and the graciously deep bosomed figure—that was not the one. It was another of infinite variety, one more irresistible with each change, that had set on this combat between me and my own self.

I bent my fists upon the earth. All that I could say to myself was that she was sweet, sweet and wonderful, here in the mystery of this wide, calm, inscrutable desert.

CHAPTER IX.

Sioux.

BEFORE dawn had broken the clear blue notes of reveille sounded and set the camp astir. By the time the sun was faintly tinging the edges of the valley we were drawn up for hot coffee and the plain fare of the prairies. A half hour later the wagon masters called "Roll out! Roll out!" The bugles again sounded for the troops to take saddle, and we were under way once more.

We had hardly gone five miles beyond the ruined station house, when we saw our advance men pull up and raise their hands. We caught it above the sound of approaching hoofs, and all joined in the cry, "Buffalo, Buffalo!"

The thunderous rolling sound approached, heavy as that of artillery going into action. We saw dust arise from the mouth of a little draw on the left, running down toward the valley, and even as we turned there came rolling from its mouth, with the noise of a tornado and the might of a mountain torrent, a vast, confused, dark mass, which rapidly spilled out across the valley ahead of us. We were almost at the banks of the herd before they reached the river bank. We were among them when they paused. The front ranks rolled back upon those behind, which, crowded from the rear, resisted. The whole front of the mass wrinkled up mightily, dark humps arising in some places two or three deep. Then the entire mass sensed the danger all at once, and with such unanimity as they had lacked concert in their late confusion, they wheeled front and rear and rolled off up the valley, still enveloped in a cloud of white, biting dust.

In such a chase speed and courage of one's horse are the main essentials. My horse was able to lay me along, side my game within a few hundred yards. I coursed close to a big black bull, and, obeying injunctions old Auberry had often given me, did not touch the trigger until I found I was holding well forward and rather low. I could scarcely hear the crack of the rifle, such was the noise of hoofs, but I saw the bull swing his tail and push on as though unhurt, in spite of the trickle of red that sprang on his flank. As I followed on, fumbling for a pistol in my holster, the bull suddenly turned, head down and tail stiffly erect, his mane bristling. My horse sprang aside, and the herd passed on. The big bull, his head lowered, presently stopped, deliberately eyeing us, and a moment later he deliberately lay down, presently sinking lower, and at length rolled over dead.

I found the great weight of the bull difficult to turn, but at length I hooked one horn into the ground, and, laying hold of the lower hind leg, I actually turned the carcass on its back.

"That's the first time I ever saw a bull die on his back," said Auberry. "He did not die on his back," I replied. "I turned him over."

"You did—and alone? It's rarely a single man could do that, nor have I seen it done in all my life with so big a bull."

"The Indians don't bother to turn a bull over," they said the boys down the back and skin both ways. The best meat is on top anyhow," and then he gave me lessons in buffalo values, which later I remembered.

We had taken some meat from my bull, since I insisted that it in spite of better beef from a young cow Auberry had killed not far above, when suddenly I heard the sound of a bugle, sharp and clear, and recognized the notes of the "recall."

"What's up?" inquired Auberry as we pulled up our galloping horses near the wagon line.

"Indians!" was the answer. "Fall in!"

We could all now see coming down from a little dappled coulee to the left a band of a line of mounted men, who doubtless had been the cause of the buffalo stampede which had crossed in front of us. The column of the tribesmen came on toward us fearlessly. They made a long calvacade, 200 horses or more, with many traveling and dogs trailing on behind. They were all clad in their native dress, seemingly hearty and well fed and each as arrogant as a king. They passed us contemptuously, with not a sidelong glance.

In advance of the head men who rode foremost in the column were three or four young women, bearing long lance shafts decorated with feathers and locks of human hair, the steel tips shining gray in the sun.

"Auberry," said Belknap, "we must go talk to these people and see what's up."

At The Theatre

"THE SPRING MAID." That opera of swaying, passionate rhythm, "The Spring Maid," which marked the passage of the Waltz King's crown from Johann Strauss to Heinrich Reimhart, will be sung by Verba and Lauecher's company of singers at the Myra Theatre, Tuesday, March 19.

It is a picture of elegance, of sparkling life, beauty that irresistibly charms and amuses. The spirit of gay Carlsbad with the mischievous, spring girls and the audacious officers, the merry humor of the strolling band of players, the dainty fascination of the legendary story of the hunted rabbit and the huntsman, the wood nymphs and the unusual ballet scenes, adorning swaths and adorable dresses, light laughter and song are in it and make memorable and kaleidoscopic pictures.

The threads of intrigue tangle into a play that could live without a note of music, and hold the sure attention of the "heaven's" misanthropes, come thick and fast, and develop a climax unusually dramatic for light opera.

Of almost equal importance with the story and merry harmonies is the scenic landscape Verba and Lauecher have given with a lavish hand. The scene at Carlsbad Springs brilliant in gay costumes and panoramic view of the village; the colorful peasant sets at Hiltchen; and the forest scene with sparkling fountains and flitting elves amid the human love-makers, make remarkable stage pictures.

With such a setting there is little wonder the famous waltzers lack nothing in their appeal. For the music is what made the success after all. There has been much good music in many Viennese and Bohemian light operas of the "Futurist" and "Merry Widow" kind, but the luscious flavor, the easy brilliancy, the flowing melodious element, the dramatic style and the warm, palpitating life are peculiarly balanced here in "The Spring Maid" so they instill into the ear and give rise to no end of sensuous pleasure while the intelligence fully justifies.

HOWE'S PICTURES.

The first really adequate haunted scenes showing the magnitude and efficiency of "Our Navy" will be presented by Lyman H. Howe at the Myra Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 26 and 27, matinee 27.

Believing that the country at large should become more familiar with this important phase of our nationality and knowing the great popularity and prestige of Mr. Howe's Travel Festival, the Secretary of the Navy granted permission exclusively to Mr. Howe's photographers to accompany him on the U. S. S. Dolphin, in New York harbor last November to photograph the greatest naval review in American history. Every facility was granted them to insure a most graphic and impressive reproduction. Never before in the history of nations have government and exhibitor worked together so effectively to show a classic beauty of Italy, the land of history and romance; the wonders of the Grand River Canon, Colorado; the newest mode of locomotion through water and air by means of the hydroplane, and the daring maneuvers of Italian aviators are among the many other subjects in Mr. Howe's "gallery of masterpieces" in motion photography.

Two are in this world's two kinds of nature—those that have wings, and those that have feet—the winged and the walking spirits. The walking are the legions; the winged are the instinctive and poetic.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

STATISTICS TAKEN OF WEEK'S WORK IN LOCAL POSTOFFICE

Every Part of Mail Handling Kept Track of During Last Week in Local Postoffice.

One of the most exact and complete sets of statistics of the workings of the local postoffice which has ever been taken has just been finished and the reports as announced by Postmaster Valentine are given below. These figures include the amount of mail handled by the office during the past week, the number of pieces each carrier and all carriers took, the time occupied by the carriers and the other employees in handling the mail each day, averages of all the different operations, the stops and distance traveled by the carriers, and many other things which go to show the quality and size of the local postal business.

One of the most important things which the statistics have brought out is the fact that so large a number of the people in the city do not have mail boxes and thereby cause the department much delay. Seventy percent of the 3207 residences where mail is delivered have no boxes and 51 percent of the 747 business places are without receptacles for their mail. At these places the carrier must see that the mail is put where it is safe and he is delayed in calling one to the door. When so large a percentage of the 3254 places of delivery cause the postman extra delay it means considerable delay for the entire route and those who do have boxes have to wait for their mail because of those who do not. Postmaster Valentine urges all those who have no boxes at present to secure them as soon as possible.

During the week past the following statistics have been compiled concerning the postoffice business in Janesville:

Delivery made to 3207 residences.

Delivery made to 747 places of business.

Delivery made to a total of 3954 places.

Amount of letters handled in one week 821 pounds.

Total amount of mail handled 5517 pounds.

Number of letters and cards handled in one week, 30,415.

70 per cent of residences have no boxes.

51 per cent of business places have no boxes.

Carriers made 21,091 stops during the week.

Carriers traveled a total of 792 miles in one week.

Reports of each carrier's work during the seven days shows that the average week's work is for these men and also the amount of mail each handles.

Each postman travels an average of 12 miles a day.

In this distance he makes 320 stops on the average.

The average amount of letters each day is 12 lbs.

Each man averages 81 pounds of all kinds of mail handled.

The mailmen handle 550 cards and letters daily apiece.

Altogether each handles 829 pieces daily.

Reo the Fifth $1,055

The Car That Marks My Limit

By R. E. Olds, Designer.

I have no quarrel with men who ask more for their cars—none with men who ask less. I have only to say that, after 25 years—after creating 25 models and building tens of thousands of cars—here's the best I know. I call it My Farewell Car.

I claim for this car no great innovation. The time is past for that. Thousands of good men, for two decades, have worked at perfecting cars. No man can ever go much further than the best these men have done.

I believe that Reo the Fifth, in almost every feature, shows the utmost these men have accomplished. It represents, in addition, the best I have learned through 25 years of continuous striving. So it comes, I believe, pretty close to finality.

It shows what can be done by modern facilities, by boundless experience, by honesty of purpose, by the genius for taking pains. And that is all that any car at any price can offer.

The Lessons of 25 Years

Where this car excels lies in what I have learned in 25 years of car building.

I've been learning longer than others. I have learned faster than others, because I had more cars out.

That's my chief advantage.

What some think right, I know to be wrong. What some think sufficient, I know to be reckless.

Myriads of cars used by myriads of owners have taught me every possible weakness. They have shown the need for big margins of safety, for exactness, for careful inspection, for laboratory tests.

I Go To Extremes

For every part I know the best steel alloy. To make sure that I get it, I analyze all my steel.

I built a crushing machine of 50 tons' capacity just to test my gears.

My axles have twice the needed strength. My bearings are Tinkon Roller and Hyatt High Duty.

My carburetor is doubly fluted, and adapted to low-grade gasoline. That makes the commonest troubles impossible.

I carry tests and inspections, throughout the construction, to what men call extremes. Those 25 years taught me the need for precautions.

They also have taught me that men love beautiful cars. My bodies are finished with 17 coats. My lamps are enameled—my engine nickel trimmed.

The upholstery is deep, and of hair-filled genuine leather. The wheel base is long, the wheels are large, the car is overbuilt. I avoid all the petty economies.

New Center Control

The gear shifting is done by that center "cone handle." It moves only three inches in each of four directions to change to every speed and reverse.

There are no side levers. Both of the brakes, also the clutch, are operated by the foot pedals. The doors are free from obstructions.

The driver may sit—as he should sit—on the left hand side, close to the curb which he passes. With the old lever controls this was impossible, save in electric cars.

Price, $1,055 the Only Satisfaction.

My greatest achievement, in my estimation, is the price on this new car. No other car begins to compete with it.

This is due to automatic machinery—to enormous production—to making all parts in one factory. It is due to building only one chassis in all this great plant. It is due to small selling cost, and to a very small profit.

But this price is not fixed.

This initial price of $1,055 is the minimum. It is based on today's low cost for materials. It is figured on a doubled output, due to this new creation.

It costs advance our price must advance. But we shall keep it this low just as long as is possible. That is better, we think, than fixing the price for six months in advance, and leaving big margins to do it.

My Supreme Effort

Reo the Fifth marks my limit. Better materials are impossible, better workmanship out of the question. Better features or devices, if they exist, are still unknown to me.

More care or skill or quality is beyond my capability. At twice the price I could build no better car. If others can, they are better men than I.

Ask for Catalog.

Ask for our catalog, showing the various bodies and stating all the facts. We will tell you then where to see the car.

Reo the Fifth, my finest creation, will interest every motor car lover. Ask for the book today. Address

Be sure to see Reo the Fifth at The Rock County Auto Show March 14 15, 16, at The Rink.
